The area features strong representation in jewelry (particularly South Asian gold specialists) and security services, with more limited options for bicycle shops and thrift stores.

Conclusion

This directory reveals Rexdale's distinct commercial character. The neighborhood hosts a remarkably strong jewelry sector with 25+ stores concentrated along Albion Road and Islington Avenue—making it a regional destination for South Asian gold jewelry, particularly 22K and 24K pieces. Security services are well-represented with a.p.i. Alarm Inc. headquartered locally and several major providers explicitly marketing to Rexdale residents.

The area shows gaps in bicycle retail and thrift shopping. Bicycle Depot remains the sole full-service bike shop within boundaries, though its 4.7-star rating across 481 reviews suggests it capably serves local cyclists. E-bike shoppers must venture slightly outside to Oakdale Road. For thrift shopping, residents are limited to Value Village and Salvation Army—no independent, vintage, or charity-specific shops operate within Rexdale proper, though the Salvation Army location directly supports local community programs.

For jewelry appraisals with certification, Raj's Jewellery is the only confirmed store with a GIA certified designer on staff. For security installations requiring insurance compliance, prioritize providers with ULC-certified monitoring such as a.p.i. Alarm, SafeTech, or Protection Plus.
